1.3 Prior Learning Information

Applicants with no (Academic) BA degree can apply for recognition of 'Previously Acquired Competence' (PAC) or 'Previously Acquired Qualifications (PAQ)'. The PAC/PAQ procedure is always handled by the higher education institution that issues the degree / programme for which the candidate makes a PAC/PAQ-request.

To be clear: in this case, you cannot make a PAC/PAQ-request to the DocNomadsPlus degree or programme, but you should submit such a request to an institute of higher education that has a PAC/PAQ procedure for the BA degree you believe you have all the necessary vcompetences or qualifications for. For instance, applicants that want to obtain an academic BA in Audiovisual Arts through a PAC/PAQ procedure should start their PAC/PAQ procedure at a university or institute which provides such an academic BA.

Note 1: We can only advise interested applicants to search for a PAC/PAQ procedure in their own country and native language.

Note 2: if an applicant succeeds in a PAC/PAQ-procedure and meets all DocNomadsPlus application requirements he/she is NOT automatically admitted as a student of DocNomadsPlus. A successful PAC/PAQ procedure only means that the applicant fulfils the formal requirements of DocNomadsPlus application

2. PROCEDURES

Candidates are subjected to a threefold admission procedure.

Prior the first ranking of the candidates, there is an Eligibility check. The Consortium makes sure that all applications that were submitted prior to the deadline, also comply with the requirements. They verify the validity of the submitted documents. At the end of the eligibility check, the Consortium Coordinator and the admission assistant make a list of eligible candidates.

Next, all the eligible candidates are ranked. The consortium looks at the e-application packages (documents and films) of the eligible candidates. Each candidate gets a mark on a scale from 0 to 30, based on the following criteria: 5 points for previous studies and experience (CV), 5 points on the motivation video, 20 points for the artistic potential based on the application film (taking into account the criteria mentioned above.). This results in a final ranking of all the applicants. Based on this ranking, at least 50 candidates are invited for an online interview.

The online interviews take three days. At least one but no more than two members of each partner university are present. The procedure is attended and facilitated by the admission assistant and by the Consortium Coordinator. A time slot of approximately 15 minutes is allocated to each candidate. Following a carefully designed time schedule, that tries to accommodate the region and more importantly the time zone in which candidates live, the selection committee calls the individual candidates. Right before the interview, the members of the selection committee review the application of the candidate (again) and watch the “Around Me, in the Here and Now” production (again). The questions that are asked vary, because the background of the candidates is diverse. After the interview, the members of the selection committee assess the candidate, considering the ways in which the candidate:

- Was able to critically discuss the “Around Me, in the Here and Now” production or other aspects from his/her work.
- Proved familiar with documentary film culture.
- Was able to engage in a conversation in English.
- Answered questions about his/her motivation and social skills.

To conclude the third and final day, the selection committee makes, by consensus, a final ranking of all the candidates. When two or more candidates are found to have equal merit, preference is given to applicants from countries not represented in the DN programme yet or who are members of a minority or underprivileged.

The entire cohort should count approximately 24 students, but this is not a binding number. For the current self-funded edition, the group of students might be smaller.

Starting from this consensus-based final ranking, LUCA is responsible for the follow-up and communication with the candidates. The candidates are notified of the results within a month following the online interview. There is a 2-week appeal period during which disappointed applicants may object to the procedure or its results.

Selected applicants will be notified in writing no later than the 31st of May 2024.
Non-selected applicants will be notified in writing no later than the 10th of June 2024.
